

Holy Family Laudato Si' Reflection

As members of the Holy Family Laudato Si' Team, we are guided by Pope Francis' call to care for our common home. Our reflections center on making intentional choices that honor creation and protect the world we share.

We are committed to dramatically reducing single-use plastics—by choosing fabric table covers, real utensils, and being more mindful of our purchases. We also hope to bring greater awareness to the problem of microplastics, which affect not only our planet but also our health and the future of our children.

I believe that we are all deeply connected—when one person suffers, we all have the potential to feel that pain. As Christians, it is our duty to stand beside those who are oppressed, not on their backs. Our faith calls us to live in solidarity, compassion, and justice.

Looking forward, we hope to continue growing in our stewardship by exploring projects such as planting trees, creating a parish garden, and one day installing solar panels as a symbol of our lasting commitment to sustainability.

I feel personally called to be part of the solution—to care for humanity and for our planet, ensuring that what we leave behind for future generations reflects our love for God, for one another, and for all creation.
