

Laudato Si Reflection

As missionary disciples we are called to live out our faith with interior conversion of heart, mind and spirit. Ecology is woven into the fabric of what we do as a parish: caring for the spiritual needs of our parishioners while working to improve the human conditions internally and externally of our community.

We are a rural community of dedicated volunteers that care for church yards, flower beds and cemetery. Maintaining a welcoming atmosphere. On going plans to plant more trees and drought tolerant plants.

A monthly Right to Life Holy Hour for aborted children is followed up with an ongoing collection of clothing and baby items for pregnancy crisis centers.

Our old church building has numerous ongoing problems causing continuous repairs and high utility bills. Our present goal is to build a new church building.

The youth are taught through parish programs to care for the dignity of human life from conception to natural death. Youth development will also include caring for the environment.

Many members of our parish remain committed to good stewardship through their volunteer and advocacy activities. We continue to encourage others to make a commitment to being involved.
